MOUNTAIN PARK TO BE NAMED FOR T. R. ROOSEVELT

Proposed Reserve Is in Heart of High Sierras in Which President Did So Much to Preserve Giant Trees.

NEW YORK, April 11.—If Theodore Roosevelt could have been consulted as to the most acceptable memorial to his name none could have pleased him better than the one suggested by the Boone-Crocker club. The club, which was founded by Roosevelt, suggested that a new national park, a vast tract in California that embraces within its bound giant trees, rugged mountains and scenery unequalled anywhere in the world, be named for the former president.

This huge tract of land is but a short distance from Sequoia park, which was established in 1890 by the government to preserve the famous giant trees for the public.

Several years ago a movement was set on foot to enlarge the park by adding a million acres of mountainous country, making it about half the size of the Yosemite park, and to be known as the Greater Sequoia park. Little general interest was shown in this project until it was suggested that it be called Roosevelt National park, and then the plan received spontaneous support.

Park Bill Passed.

A bill was introduced in congress to establish the new national park and the senate passed it within three days, and it received immediate consideration from the house.

In introducing the bill into the senate, Senator Phelan, of California, said: "California—a state richly endowed by nature—can dedicate no finer monument to the memory of Roosevelt than this, the choice of her natural gifts."

Theodore Roosevelt was early identified with the West. He sought among the great mountain ranges and the vast expanse of the prairie a field for his abounding energy. The liberating influence of the West, the nationalized him, prepared him, as it were, for the larger tasks which he was destined to pursue. I can not imagine a more fitting memorial for a man of his tastes than the wild, rugged and sublime scenery embraced in Central California.

Topography of the New Park.

For its eastern boundary the Roosevelt National park will have 75 miles of the crest of the Sierra Nevada mountains. From its extreme north to Mount Whitney, near its southern boundary, the region is a magnificent mountain climax—a collection of peaks ranging from 13,000 feet to Mount Whitney's 14,500 feet of altitude—the highest in the United States proper. (Mount McKinley, in Alaska, is the loftiest North American peak.) This area is connected by ridges and gigantic mountain masses scarcely less in height. For 10 or 15 miles east of the crest, peaks, ranges and circled ridges are massed in a tremendous glacier and snow-sprinkled area known by mountain climbers as High Sierras. This is the most celebrated high mountain region of America. Its devotees have long compared it with the Alps.

West again from the zone of the High Sierras the range of lesser altitude is crossed by innumerable ranges and divides, between which flow the rivers buried in deep forested canyons which are among the noblest in the United States. Some of the heights exceed 11,000 feet. The precipices immediately including the valleys range from 5,000 to 5,500 feet above the level. The zone will become, when trails are developed, the most wonderful playground for the trail traveler and the camper-out in the far southwest. The entire region has long been recognized as the greatest place in America for the traveler by trail and the camper-out. Its loftiest snow-crowned heights are easily penetrable by trail and its middle zones and giant valleys will especially become the resort of the camper. This part of the country receives no rain from the middle of June until the middle of October. Very few parties take tents into the wilderness. It is enough to load warm sleeping bags and plenty of clothing upon mule-back, and at night, slipping into these sleep around camp fires in the shelter of great pines.

When the Roosevelt park has been even as well developed for handling the public as is the Yosemite today, the former will attract fully as many people as its older rival. And the day may not be far removed when a certain amount of interpark travel may develop for the benefit of those who enjoy camping trips among the wilder regions and the parks.

CIGARETTES ARE HARD HIT BY NEBRASKA LAW

LINCOLN, Neb., April 11.—Cigarette sales, unlawful in Nebraska since 1903, will have their last day here today. A law signed a bill passed by the state legislature licensing cigarette dealers, and prohibiting the sale of cigarettes in public houses, prevent cigarette advertising in newspapers, and provide revocation of the license of any tobacco dealer convicted of selling cigarettes to minors.

DOWN IN BED AND SO WEAK

Lady Suffered Terribly for Eight Weeks, But Her Case Showed Wonderful Improvement After Taking Cardui.

Johnson City, Tenn.—Mrs. M. R. Scott, living near this town, states: "About three years ago I was down in bed . . . terrible and so weak I couldn't bear the sight of food. This condition continued for about eight weeks . . . I thought I was going to die, and knew I must get something to do me some good. I had heard all my life of Cardui and the good results obtained from its use. So I decided to try it.

After about a half bottle of Cardui my appetite improved, then I was less nervous. I kept it up until I had taken five bottles—and such an improvement! I gained flesh and now am the picture of health, due, I believe, solely to the use of Cardui. I am the mother of ten children and feel well and strong."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic for women. It has stood the most severe of all tests—the test of time, having been in use for over forty years. It is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which have been found to help build up the vitality, tone up the nerves and strengthen the womanly constitution.

MOVE THRILLER PUT ON TO BOOST NEW VICTORY LOAN

Douglas Fairbanks Forwards Proof of Patriotic Film to Treasury Department to Encourage Nation.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 11. (Sp.)—Douglas Fairbanks has completed his propaganda film, "Knocking Knockers," specially produced at the request of Secretary Tamm and Frank E. Wilson, director of publicity, treasury department, to be used in the advance campaign for the fifth Victory loan.

The Fairbanks Victory loan film is now en route to the treasury department national headquarters, where it will be shown to Secretary of the Treasury Glass and members of his department in charge of expedition and propaganda. The various parts in this allegorical movie are played by Frank Campana, Sara Mason, Charles Stevens, Spike Robinson, Bill Montana and W. A. Wellman, the American ace.

Synopsis of Play.

Following is a brief synopsis of "Knocking Knockers":

When a Germanian sought to burn National Liberty, Democracy with the aid of Allied Man Power, rescued her and delivered her to the waiting soldier.

Prussianism had seen the rescue and, knowing that retribution was about to overtake him, hid in the hall of justice. Democracy saw him and, jumping through the skylight, attacked him and soon put it below him and out. Seizing a fire hose from one of the Allied Powers, Democracy washed Prussianism down the sewer and then came home prepared to enjoy the fruits of victory.

But almost immediately evil forces, in the shape of Disunion, Sedition, Propaganda and Brute Ignorance, endeavored to discredit the Government. Although the American soldiers had won undying fame on the battlefield and the people at home had undergone hardships to successfully prosecute the war, these three conspirators, by their complaints, soon dampened the people's enthusiasm and caused them to wonder whether the American Republic had really done the great things credited to it.

When the time came for the people to support the Fifth Liberty Loan, Propaganda, by his insidious writings, had stolen away the key to their support, and the plotters felt sure that the Loan would fail. But Democracy was not satisfied. He wanted to ruin Democracy, so in the disguise of a Public Benefactor, he went to Democracy's home and persuaded him to go to the den where the plotters held forth, to rescue this key. The time for Democracy's coming was fixed at midnight, and the conspirators planned to seize Democracy and blow him to pieces.

But Democracy arrived at the den ahead of time. Overhearing the plot to murder him, Democracy decided to take them by surprise. The doors were locked, so he broke through the roof and entered without being seen by the three malefactors. He hung an electric flash from the ceiling and then stepped to the light switch. When the plotters were turned up again, Democracy turned off the lights. Disunion, Propaganda and Ignorance made a dash for the door, but they could not see the electric flash. The light took place in utter darkness. When the lights were turned up again, Democracy had succeeded in completely locking the conspirators. Seizing the key and the people's enthusiasm and support, he then lighted the bomb intended for his own destruction and blew it up. The plotters were blown to pieces. He was scarcely outside the den when a terrific explosion blew them to pieces. Rushing to the telephone booth, Democracy telephoned to the whole world that with these evil forces out of the way, the People's Enthusiasm and Support for the Liberty Loan were assured and that the Victory Loan would be a cinch to put over.

AMERICA WILL NEVER FORGET, SAYS WILSON

"America will not forget." This was the concluding sentence in a message which President Wilson sent to the fighting men in debarkation hospital No. 1 at New York just before he sailed on the George Washington to take part in the closing session of the peace conference at Paris.

How shall we prove that America will not forget? Whether the president had in mind the Victory loan is a question which doesn't matter. The fact remains that this loan is the first test offered, and those who subscribe to it—and this must mean everyone—will prove that our memories are not short, our patriotism is still aggressive, not passive, and that we shall do our full duty in clinching the victory won by men whose wounds, said the president, "are the noblest badges ever worn."

The text of the short note written by President Wilson to Right About, the official publication of debarkation hospital No. 1, follows:

"I could tell you, he wrote, 'what I sacrifice you have made have meant to the world. I could tell you what history for all time to come will say of you and the sufferings you have experienced on your great crusade. But these things other men will tell you. I prefer to remind you that the wounds you bear are the noblest badges of honor any man has ever worn; that they exalt you to a supreme place in the minds and hearts of your countrymen and of all the world. I prefer to assure you that America realizes that she has a duty to perform, no more patriotic duty than to express in practical terms the gratitude that every American, man, woman and child, feels for every one of you.'"

SECURITY OF SAVINGS "SAFETY FIRST" ITEM

The teaching of safety in industrial work, and how it can best be carried out, is explained in a circular which is being sent out to manufacturing plants throughout the country by the United States department of labor.

The service also will encourage employees to call attention to the fact that preservation of life under working conditions is perfected as much through better sanitary conditions as through safety appliances.

"One of the steps is a study of the dangers in certain industries and the formation of safety regulations that will eliminate much of the hazard," says a notice from the labor department.

"The service also will encourage employees to call attention to the fact that preservation of life under working conditions is perfected as much through better sanitary conditions as through safety appliances."

MEXICAN GOVERNOR TO HAND OVER OUTLAWS

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 11.—Lawbreakers along the Mexican border, whether Mexicans or Americans, will not find refuge hereafter by fleeing into the state of Tamaulipas, Mexico, for Gov. Andres Oqupa has waived extradition legalities in crimes of violence. In this connection he has ordered authorities at Matamoros to turn over to W. T. Vann, sheriff of Cameron county, Texas, two men charged with being implicated in the killing in Cameron county of Rodrigo Rodriguez, an American citizen, on Jan. 17, last. The men, it is charged, slipped across the border, waited for Rodriguez and shot him from ambush as he rode past on horseback. Later they were arrested in Matamoros. For several years American peace officers have had trouble in dealing with cases where criminals raced into Mexico to escape American authorities.

RACE SUICIDE PLAN IS SCHEME IN SOCIAL WAR

LONDON, April 11. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Race suicide as the result of the "aristocracy of labor," will be the outcome of the movement by which labor now seeks to destroy capital, according to Dean Inge, of St. Paul's cathedral, in an address recently at a meeting of the Eugenics Education society. England's dense population, he asserted, will then disappear and the country will revert to the quiet rural England of 1750, with London, bereft of her wealth, the "spiritual capital of the world."

"Neither voluntary restrictions of births, which only lowers the death rate," he said, "nor famine, nor pestilence, nor war has much effect in reducing numbers. The late war cost about 8,000,000 killed. But those losses, he added, may be made good in a few years."

"But at home we must face the fact that the upper and middle classes probably will be destroyed by predatory taxation. We are witnessing the creation of a new privilege class, an aristocracy of labor, which will become exclusive and conservative when it has won the privilege of exploiting the proletariat for its own profit. It probably will refuse to tax itself for the benefit of the proletariat, so that when the lot of the poor will be an advantage, but since the cheap races must end by capturing the trade the privileged workers must themselves decay. The trade unionist probably will be allowed to place only one son in his union and will take care not to have more. The industrial employment of women will also lower the birth rate. Thus, in every class there will be a tendency to progressive decay."

Ten Years' Suffering from Itching, Burning Skin Trouble Stopped by Resinol

Gretna, Va., Oct. 20.—"I suffered for over 10 years with itching and burning of my skin. It never broke out at all, but just itched and burned terribly. I tried almost everything, but got no relief. As soon as I began using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the itching and burning left me almost at once. I used one jar of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap and was completely cured."
